

Economic advice – government, social, infrastructure and industry

Economic advice - government, social, infrastructure and industry

ACIL Tasman's breadth of economic expertise enables the practical application of analytical and modelling skills to a wide range of industry and government sectors. Our experience extends across many industries and policy areas. We are focussed on careful, credible analysis and on delivering innovative solutions for our clients.

Our capability across a range of sectors covers:

Agribusiness

- grains
- agri-biotechnology

Defence

Energy and resources

- coal, petroleum and minerals
- electricity
- gas
- renewable energy

Environment and climate change

- environment
- climate change and greenhouse gas mitigation

Geospatial

Government

- evaluation
- policy
- impact statements

Indigenous development

Infrastructure

- assessment
- access arrangements
- pricing

Social

- health
- arts, culture and sports

Transport

- aviation and airports
- road transport
- marine and shipping
- rail
- public transport
- freight modelling
- passenger modelling and forecasting

Water resources

- water
- wastewater

ACIL Tasman also has expertise and understanding of the interaction between the public and the private sectors in service provision, including financial sector reform, competition policy and public-private sector partnerships. Risk management is a growing area of interest.

Contact ACIL Tasman for more information about our experience in your sector.